AKANE was born in Japan, but has spent her childhood in multi-culture hub of Hong Kong and Shenzhen, China. Wanting to see the world more, she moved to Columbus, Ohio after high school. She graduated at Columbus College of Art & Design with BFA Photography and an honor degree. AKANE currently lives and works in Tokyo. She loves watching movies in the theater late at night.

In her photographs, the pie is always in the sky. Influenced by the marination of Western and Asian culture found in Hong Kong, she paints the reality and the imaginary onto a canvas, creating an eccentric world illuminating with vibrantly blooming colors and glaring textures. Anything mundane is a source of inspiration to her. Be it a construction site, a bag of trash, or ordinary stationary items, flash of light transforms them into something special.
